Haskell EMERSON MEDICAL PLAZA

A new $5 million, 37,000-square-foot medical office building for HealthAmerica at the Emerson Medical Plaza in Jacksonville. HealthAmerica leases the medical office building to Shands Jacksonville, a private, not-for-profit hospital affiliated with the University of Florida College of Medicine – Jacksonville.

Haskell served as the design/build firm for the medical office building, which includes a three-story shell building, stair tower and elevator chase. In addition to the building's shell and design, Haskell also completed the first floor of the medical office building. Shands will use the space to operate a full-service imaging center that will serve the University of Florida and community physicians. When complete, the medical office building will house a women's center and doctors' offices on the second floor.
